District 10 Title at Stake in Hope Game at DeQueen

Hope Undeclared, De-Queen Only Tied, in Southwestern District

BOTH ARE IN SHAPE

Kick-Off Is Scheduled at 2:30 Friday Afternoon at DeQueen

DE QUEEN, Ark.—Upon the outcome of the Hope-De Queen football game here Friday afternoon hangs the undisputed championship of Southwest Arkansas. The Bobcats are undefeated in this part of the state, while the Leopards have nothing worse than a tie with Nashville to mar their record. Both teams are recognized as outstanding, not only in District 10, but in the state, and the largest attendance in local football history is anticipated.

The Bobcats will come here as paper favorites, but most De Queen fans are confident the Leopards will be the victors. They point to the fact that the Leopards will be playing in the daylight, at home, and in the presence of a homecoming crowd, an advantage that sometimes produces inspired football.

Both Heavy Teams

Both teams are reported in good physical condition, and it is assured the coaches will throw their full strength into the Friday fracas, in which so much is at stake. Both are heavy teams, being about evenly matched in weight, so that the issue probably will be decided by speed and science.

The Bobcats have Cargile, a backfield ace whose ball-carrying prowess has attracted state-wide attention, and Mr. Cargile, it is said, has 10 husky mates who know well how to lend co-operation necessary to achieve yardage. Gray and Aubrey will be among the Leopard backfield mainstays, and they too have a supporting cast that functions beautifully. It is certain to be a splendid exhibition.

Is De Queen Homecoming

The game has been made the occasion for a De Queen homecoming, with ceremonies which will include the crowning of a queen. The De Queen pep squad and band will be

Ralph Scott, 19, Accepted as U. S. Department of Justice Recruit

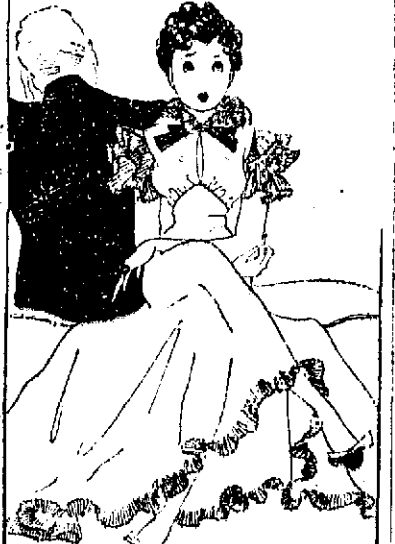

Ralph Scott, 19-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Scott of McCaskill, is planning to be a "G-man."

After receiving his diploma from Hendrix college, Conway, last spring, young Scott left for Washington. He obtained employment in the Department of Justice.

His ambition to become a federal sleuth led department officials to send him to George Washington university to complete a course of training preparatory to taking assignments in tracking down outlaws.

Manuel Quezon, who on November

Quezon, like Washington, started out in life as a land surveyor.

Pope Moves for Delay of Boycott

Meanwhile Italy Has Conquered 11,000 Square Miles of Ethiopia

ROME, Italy.—(Copyright AP)—Pope Pius was understood authoritatively Thursday to be making a supreme effort to have the application of sanctions against Italy postponed.

Usually well informed ecclesiastical sources said the holy father is still hopeful that the League of Nations powers would delay the imposition of trade bans upon Italy for her warfare against Ethiopia, in the interest of world peace.

Huge Ethiopian Slice

MAKALE, Ethiopia.—(AP)—Italy had acquired about 5,875 square miles of northern Ethiopian territory Thursday with the annexation of eastern Tigre province.

The acquisition embraces all territory so far occupied by the Italian troops on the Eritrean or northern front.

It includes eastern Ethiopia to a point about 10 miles south of Makale and western Ethiopia to a point about 15 miles south of Adowa and Aksum. Additional territory at least equally large has been taken by the Italian forces operating from Italian Somaliland in southern Ethiopia.

Raps Street Tax as Obsolete Law, and Asks Repeal

Calvin S. Smith Criticizes Local Enforcement as a "Backwoods" Move

'FOR REVENUE ONLY'

Letter Writer Declares, No One Actually Works Streets Since Paving

Editor The Star: I want to hand some brickbats to the City of Hope, and especially to its near-sighted present councilmen.

I want you, Mr. Editor, to print this letter in your good newspaper if you please, for I think everyone will agree with me after I have had my say that every word of it is true. It might cause some to think, and thereby bring action.

Friday the City of Hope is going to do one of its most stupid of all its long list of stupid acts—that of attempting to enforce, by arresting men and bringing them to the city court, the out-grown street tax law.

When that law was made there were no paved streets and there wasn't much money to hire a regular street crew to work the roads and streets, as we have today. So every able-bodied man between the ages of 18 and 45 years was expected to work five days twice a year. Or, he could pay the sum of $2.50 twice a year if he did not want to work it out.

The law meant to keep the streets and roads in good condition by men working on them, and these that did so paid their money to hire help or buy road materials.

A Revenue Measure

I said the council was near-sighted. They are worse than that. They are dumb in giving orders to the police to enforce the law when there are so many people against it. It is being done for no other purpose than to bring more dollars into the city treasury.

Everyone knows that Hope is one of the few towns that has stayed out of debt these past few years. It not only stayed out of debt, but it has a surplus in the treasury, thanks to the city-owned light and water plant.

So the city does not need that street tax money. I say that if everyone worked the streets or roads instead of paying $5 a year, that out-grown law would be repealed the next time the council met. It is only that it is a rich "mine" for getting more money that the pressure is being brought to bear by the present council.

The council wants to buy the Elks home and also buy the airfield—that is the only reason for this sudden burst of moral law-enforcement. Hope is about the same age as a town as its neighboring city of Texarkana, yet look what a difference in size, population and civic pride. Texarkana has Hope beat a mile. Why? Because Texarkana has had leaders who weren't afraid to step out to do and dare. They have not been afraid of the morals of their people being ruined. Texarkana has been a rough town, of course, but they always welcomed shows, dance halls, carnivals, industry and airports.

Things like that are necessary to develop a town. That is the reason Hope has been and still is in the "backwoods."

Advocates Repeal

If Hope wants to redeem itself and make the world sit up and take notice, well, on Friday Judge Lemley should find every one of those arrested for street tax evasion not guilty. Then the next time the council meets it should repeal that law, then authorize the board of the city water and light plant to go out into the rural county and get contracts to use water and light and come back and order still another generator and really develop Hope's great asset.

Then we should revive the Watermelon festival, and go after industry and offer it some inducement. Hope has been indifferent to industry. Its leaders didn't care whether any new factory or mill came here or not.

We put men in the council and mayor's office to use their heads not for just a few well-to-do's but for the betterment of all the people. The reason I personally want every one to call on the council to repeal the street tax law is this:

The biggest majority of the men in Hope are working men. The majority just can't afford to pay $5 a year when their income is about $350 a year. Some I know don't get $350 a year, yet they are working most of the time and can't afford to lose the time off from work to work the streets. Wages are small at the factories and mills and other lines of

Unemployed March on Kansan Who "Balanced State Budget"

Delegation at Topeka Challenges Justice of Governor Landon's State Fiscal Policies

TOPEKA, Kan.—(AP)—A delegation of unemployed men challenged the justice of Governor Alf M. Landon's balanced Kansas budget Wednesday on a demand for additional relief. They threatened to stage a "hunger march" on Topeka.

The delegation claimed to represent 15,000 persons. It received assurance from Landon that the needy will be cared for.

"We are agreed that the relief is a national problem," said B. C. McCafferty of Wichita. "However, we do not intend to allow budgets to be balanced at our expense."

He challenged "the justice" of Kansas' "much advertised balanced budget—balanced, we believe, at the expense of the farmers and the unemployed."

TOPEKA, Kan.—Will Gov. Alfred M. Landon of Kansas carry the Republican presidential banner in 1936?

Will this quiet and unassuming state executive win over the nation's voters and return the G. O. P. to power? The cotton-growing farmer in the south and the wheat and corn-producing agrarian of the middle-west ask these questions. St. Louis sports writers call him a sensation. Detroit and Chicago newspapers hail him as one of the most promising jockeys in the land.

His success in bringing home winners on the turf has attracted Bing Crosby, noted radio and screen star. Negotiations are reported under way between Crosby and Simpson whereby Simpson would ride for the noted singer on California race tracks.

Simpson's record as a jockey is not a year old. Only 17 years old, he ran away from school here last February.

Senator Caraway Speaks at Alton

Praises Local CCC Camp as the Finest She Has Seen on Her Tour

United States Senator Hattie W. Caraway praised the Alton CCC camp as one of the most beautiful she has seen, in a visit to Hope this week.

She delivered a short address to the CCC recruits in which she praised the work of the camps in their assistance to the young men of the country and the benefit derived by the farmers and the conservation of forests.

She stated she was proud that she had a part in making the CCC camps possible.

After the address, R. C. Ellen, Project Superintendent, introduced the members of the Using service to the senator.

Lieutenant John C. Meador, commander of the company, conducted Mrs. Caraway through the barracks where each member was introduced to the senator. She had a kind word of encouragement for all the men.

Accompanying Senator Caraway to the camp were Harry J. Lemley, Lloyd Spencer and W. Kendall Lemley. While visiting in Hope Mrs. Caraway was a guest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Spencer.

It was Mrs. Spencer who introduced Mrs. Caraway to a political rally in Hope several years ago when the senator Huey P. Long stamped the state in the interest of Mrs. Caraway's election to the United States Senate.

Your Health

By Dr. Morris Fishbein

Now that the children are back in school and cold weather has begun, we begin to see evidences of the spread of those infectious diseases that pass from child to child.

One condition that spreads rapidly and is seldom understood by parents is the form of eruption called German measles. This disease resembles both scarlet fever and ordinary measles in appearance, but differs from them in the fact that it is mild, with a slight degree of fever and with few serious secondary complications.

Usually German measles appears from 10 to 21 days after the child has been in contact with another who has this disease. Ordinarily about 15 days after such contact, the child feels slightly ill, and then there is a brilliant rash on the skin.

This rash usually appears next to the hair line on the forehead. Its brilliant redness usually is mistaken for the rash of ordinary measles or scarlet fever.

The child may have been sick four or five days before the rash first appears.

The glands at the back of the neck are swollen and occasionally painful. The eyes sometimes may be inflamed, but in the majority of cases the condition is so mild that parents are likely to give it little attention.

Because of the rapidity with which this disease spreads, from one child to another, it is customary to permit the other children in the family to go to school for 10 days after the first child becomes sick, and then to remain home for the next 10 days, during which time they are likely to come down with the disease if they have been infected.

It is advisable, however, for all children in the family to stay away from other children until it is certain that they are not likely to carry this disease.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

When a brilliant man makes a success of his life and has a wife who neither knows nor cares what it is all about, most people feel very sorry for him. Margaret Ayer Barnes discusses the wife's side of it in "Edna His Wife" and suggests that the little woman deserves a share of the pity, too.

Edna, the central figure of Mrs. Barnes' novel, is the corn-fed daughter of a small-town Illinois railroad station agent. She elopes with an ambitious lawyer, organizes a "Joins a profession which organ gets far ahead of her that she can't even see the future."

Her hubby is one of those ruthless and determined agents who get to the top regardless. He becomes a big shot in Chicago, moves on to Washington as a dollar-a-year man in wartime, and then establishes himself in the lush fields of Manhattan.

Edna goes along, of course, rising from a four-room Chicago apartment to an incredibly expensive New York penthouse; but she gets practically no fun out of it at any stage of the game.

A brilliant and successful man, one gathers, is beginning to live with a broken-down honest Rock Island brakeman to marry her lawyer, and she had cause to regret it; for she remained a small town matron at heart, and the glitter and ease of a millionaire's existence just left her cold.

She is probably a very good symbol for a good many American women. The essential hollowiness of much of our scramble for success is best reflected, not in the careers of the success-seekers, but in the lives of their wives.

"Edna His Wife" is published by the Houghton Mifflin Co. at $2.50.

Glorifying Yourself

By Alicia Hart

Fortunately, the chin and throat—generally the first spots to show signs of age—are fairly easy to keep young-looking and beautiful. Expenditure of a comparatively small amount of time and effort makes it simple indeed for any girl to ward off fullness below the chin, a heavy look about the jaw bone and a crepey crease.

The chin needs plenty of rich cream, correct massage and preparations to stimulate circulation, of course. New routines in some of our better beauty shops make no use whatever of slapping and patting. Instead, operators who give facials work upward with fingertips on the throat, then, with thumbs and forefingers, pinch and mold the flesh along the jawbone from the center of the chin outward to the ears.

If you give yourself facials at home, first cleanse your skin thoroughly, then cover face and throat with a layer of the richest cream you own. Keeping fingers close together, lift your elbows and, beginning at your collarbone, lightly pinch the flesh on your throat upward to your chin.

After Massage, Rub With Ice

Be extremely gentle, but press fingers in deeply enough to exercise the muscles underneath. Then firmly pinch and mold the flesh on your jawbone. The same light touch and gentle lifting of skin and flesh underneath is good for the entire face.

When your throat is warm and glowing and your chin feels quite stimulated by the pinching, remove tissue cream, pat with cold tonic, cover a piece of ice with clean gauze and rub it lightly across throat and chin. If your complexion is dry, apply a new thin coat of cream and leave it on all night.

Remember that bad posture often causes a double chin and sagging throat muscles. If you carry your head straight, making the muscles below the ears support it, these muscles will become strong and will hold the flesh firmly across your chin. If you make the upper vertebrae of your backbone do all the work, neck muscles become soft and flabby.

Exercise to Alleviate Chin

To correct head posture, balance a book on your head. Walk about the room, holding your neck so the book doesn't fall off and stretching upward as if to touch the ceiling with the book. If the book stays on, your posture is good.

Also to strengthen neckline muscles, try this exercise:

Stand erect with arms at your sides. Let your head fall backward as far as it will go, relaxing the jaw until mouth is wide open. Then, making throat muscles tense, close your mouth and bring your head upward to correct position. Turn it as far to the right as it will go. Then to the left. Repeat twenty times.

NEXT: Learn to relax.

Your Children

"What," asks a mother, "am I to do when my children are taught good manners at home and then the whole thing is ruined by their association with other rude children?"

I wish I knew. Some thousands or millions of other mothers face the same problem.

It is used to be that a pretty good average of conduct prevailed. Extremes were not so great at least. Life not being the game of grab-and-catch that it is now, people having more identical conditions of living, children reflected the calm of their sires and there was more natural kindness.

The GOLDEN FEATHER

by Robert Bruce © 1935 NFA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JEAN DUNN, secretary to DON-ALD MOVIE, lawyer, delays her answer when BOBBY WALLACE, automobile salesman, asks her to marry him.

At the Golden Feather night club she meets SANDY HARKINS, whose business connection is vague. Sandy introduces Bobby and Jean to AL and MRS. LEWIS. Bobby sells some bonds for Lewis, who buys a car and is trailing WINGY LEWIS, bank robber. He learns about the bank robbery and questions Bobby. Bobby believes the car Lewis bought is new. Bobby understands the situation.

Jean agrees to a secret engagement with Sandy. The bank of which her father is president is robbed and Larry starts a search for the robbers.

Jean goes to see Sandy who has been injured. He and the Lewises are staying at a farmhouse. She soon finds herself a prisoner.

Larry learns the robbers were the Jackson gang. He meets them at the farmhouse after the gang has been taken. Bobby tells Larry that Jean is missing.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXVIII

"CAN'T help it," said Bobby Wallace's voice in the receiver. "Mr. Dunn is here and he went up to her office this morning and she's gone out of town without saying a word to anybody, or leaving any message, or—"

Larry Glenn's eyes dropped to the blotter full of fingerprints and enlargements. As he glanced at the set which, according to Tony LaRocco, had been made by a woman, a sudden thought struck him.

"Listen, Bobby," he said. "Do you remember the night you and I had dinner in Jean's apartment? Remember I took her fingerprints, to show her how it was done, and you kept the slip of paper I used? Have you still got it?"

"Yes," said Bobby, surprised.

"Then get it and bring it down here just as fast as you can travel. Hurry. It may be important!"

Larry hung up, replaced the telephone, and stared off into space for a moment. Then he gave his head a jerky little shake, as if to jar his wandering thoughts back into place, and turned again to Tony.

"I may be able to get an identification for those prints in half an hour," he said. "Meanwhile, we've got to get after this thing. That Jackson gang left that farm house some time this morning—I'm convinced of it. Call up the airport and tell 'em to have a plane ready for you and Al Peters and me. We can be back at Midlothian before mid-afternoon, and we'll just raid that place and see what's in it."

Tony departed, leaving Larry to stare abstractedly at the prints while his mind raced on furiously. He waited in rising impatience until, at last, the girl at the outer switchboard announced the arrival of Bobby Wallace. Larry asked her to send him in at once, and when the young man arrived Larry barely paused to shake hands with him before saying, "Let's see it, Bob—quick!"

Bobby handed him the sheet of note paper on which, for after-dinner fest, Larry had made an impression of Jean Dunn's fingerprints. Larry laid it on the desk beside the typewriter. Prints Tony had copied from the table knife. As he bent over them, comparing them with cold exactness, his face became gray and hard; when, at last, he stood erect and looked at Bobby his eyes were very tired.

"What's it all about?" asked Bobby.

"Just this," said Larry. "Jean Dunn is—or was, six hours ago—in the company of Red Jackson and his gangsters!"

THE hired sedan from the Midlothian car sped swiftly over the road to Midlothian, bearing Larry Glenn, Tony LaRocco, and Al Peters; behind it came another car with the county sheriff and three of his deputies, their aid hastily enlisted by Larry on the theory that local co-operation never comes amiss. The two cars covered the 10 miles to the Eagle farm in just over 11 minutes, and spun into the driveway with a crunching of tires on gravel and a whining of brakes.

Mrs. Engle was standing in the back yard. She let out one yell—a frightened squawk for her husband—and then froze into immobility as a bulky deputy sheriff swaggered over and told her that, since she was under arrest, she would do well to keep quiet.

Engle came out the back door just in time to encounter the federal men. Larry thrust a search warrant under his nose; the farmer blinked at it, read it, and then looked up sourly.

"Yeah!" he said bitterly. "Ask 'em questions for the triple-A. I ought to've known—"

He, too, subsided as a deputy took him in tow, and the raiders went into the house.

The dishes on the kitchen table had been washed, since morning, and as they went upstairs they discovered that the bedrooms had all been aired and straightened, and the beds remade with fresh linen.

Having been cleaned and straightened, the bedrooms contained little traces of their occupants of the night before. After half an hour's careful peering and prying, Larry came down the stairs despondently, convinced that the house would offer no clew as to the gangster's destination.

THE telephone in the hall tinkled. Engle involuntarily started to rise, only to be jerked back to his seat by the heavy hand of a deputy.

Larry went to the phone, took the receiver from the hook, and said, "Hello." The operator's voice said, "Portsmouth is calling Mr. Fred Engle."

"This is Engle," said Larry. He heard the prisoner in the parlor give a muffled gasp; then the operator's voice, far off, said, "All right, Portsmouth—ready with Mr. Engle?" and a moment later a man's voice came on the line.

"Hello—Engle," the man said. "Listen, Jack, I may show there this afternoon or tonight. If he does, tell him we're at French Pete's. Got it?"

Larry tried to give his voice the sullen, despondent tone that Engle always seemed to use.

"If Jack Floyd comes, you're at French Pete's," he said. Then, on a venture, he said, "How does he get there, from here?"

"What the hell's it to you how he gets there?" snarled the voice suspiciously. "You give 'em the message and keep your lips buttoned, y' hear?"

"All right," said Larry. There was a click as the man hung up.

Larry replaced the receiver and called loudly for Al Peters. When that agent came down the stairs Larry ordered him to go to the telephone company offices in Midlothian at once and try to trace the call that had just been made. Then he summoned LaRocco, and the sheriff and told them of the call.

"Portsmouth's about 120 miles north of here," said the sheriff reflectively. "That's a long way out of my bailiwick. I never heard of any French Pete's. Maybe we can sweat it out of the Engles, though."

So they questioned the Engles, learning precisely nothing and getting no replies but grim shakes of the head to all their questions; and at last Larry told the sheriff to take them off to jail and lock them up on charges of harboring criminals.

"I'll leave Al Peters here with you," he said. "It'd be a fine thing if you'd let some of your boys wait here at the house with Al to pick up this man, Floyd when he shows up."

THE sheriff agreed and detailed two deputies to wait at the farm house. Then, with his prisoners and the remaining deputy, he set off for the county seat.

Larry and Tony discussed the situation on the farm house veranda.

"Well, up to Portsmouth and then discuss our plans," said Larry.

He broke off suddenly, went to the telephone, and put in a call for Mike Hagan of the Dover police. Two minutes later he had Mike on the wire.

Briefly and incisively he outlined the situation to Mike, wading up by saying, "Mike, you seem to know a little something about everything—have you got even the foggiest kind of notion where or what this French Pete's might be?"

"Hmmm," said Mike reflectively. There was a long silence; then he said, "No, Larry, I haven't. I'll tell you what I'll do, though. I've got a good friend who is a plain clothes man on the Portsmouth force. I'll just run over there and meet you there, and we'll talk to this friend of mine. He might know something. At any rate he can give you a steer or two around Portsmouth."

"Fine," said Larry. "We'll be there by 6 o'clock and meet you at police headquarters. Okay?"

"Okay," said Hagan, and hung up. Larry turned away from the phone just in time to greet Al Peters, back from the phone company offices. He reported that he had displayed his credentials and a man in plain clothes was in touch with the chief operator in Portsmouth, who had been requested to give him every assistance. After some difficulties the call had been traced—to a pay station booth in a Portsmouth bus station.

"That's not much help," admitted Larry. "But we're on a hot trail, just the same. I've got a hunch we'll catch up with this gang before we're 24 hours older."

He suddenly thought of Jean Dunn, and his mouth grew grim.

"Hot trail or cold trail," he said, "we'd better follow it. We've got to catch up with 'em, this time!"

Tickets Refunded at Mat Contest

Fair Park Program Postponed Because of Disappointing Crowd

Because of the small turnout, the American Legion wrestling show at Fair park was postponed Wednesday night until the following Wednesday. Promoter Bert Mauldin refunded the money to those who bought tickets and also presented free passes to everyone present. The passes are good for the show next week.

Weather conditions and a benefit show at the Sneger theater Wednesday night were believed to have held down the crowd.

November Days

Who said November days are drear and sad? November days are merely gray and still. October's fuss is over, leaves are dropping down. Most of the nuts have dropped. Upon the hill, Trees are beginning to display their naked grace. Against a background Nature has prepared. A soft gray sky that throws into relief. Each tiny twig and branch the winds have bared. Who said November days are drear and sad? Still, yes; but many lovely things are still. In silence, often, come our greatest things. God's love; healed wounds; the sunrise over the hill. November's gray makes apples redder; Makes fires seem brighter, and adds to their cheer. November days are lovely days to me. Gray, still and chill,—yet intimate and dear.—Selected.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ogleby P. T. A. was held on Tuesday afternoon with the president, Mrs. Ruffin White, presiding. Mrs. E. F. McFaddin presented Miss Marie Bell Holt, Miss Pansy Wimberly and Mrs. Nallon Wylie in a very interesting program pertaining to National Book week. The National president's message was given by Mrs. Finley Ward. Mrs. White gave the high lights of the state convention, held last week in Little Rock. Miss Frances Patterson's room won the dollar for having the greatest number of mothers present.

Walter N. Alexander of Portland, Ark., has been the guest of friends in the city for the past two days.

Mrs. J. W. Patterson and son, J. W. Jr., have returned from a week's visit with relatives and friends in San Antonio, Texas.

The Hope Garden club will hold its November meeting at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. M. M. Emlyth on South Main street. Mrs. A. F. Hannegan will lead the program.

Mrs. C. S. Lowthorp was hostess to the members of the Wednesday Bridge club on Wednesday afternoon at her home on South Elm street. Attractive favors were to Mrs. F. M. McWilliams and Mrs. G. Frank Miles.

Almost two hundred members of the adult department of the Methodist church school responded to an invitation extended by the Jewell Bible and Edith Thompson classes to attend a chili supper and social evening at the church honoring Mr. and Mrs. Harrison; the Graves and McFaddin Men's classes; and the Adult Young Peoples class.

Promptly at 7:30 a large throng assembled, eager to extend greetings to the "new" pastor and his charming wife.

An informal receiving line composed of Pastor and Mrs. Harrison; Messdames J. H. Arnold and D. B. Thompson; Messdames O. A. Graves and E. F. McFaddin; teachers; Messdames G. F. Miles and Dewey Hendrix; presidents of the women's classes welcomed the guests at the east entrance, after which they were ushered into a department room, which had been converted into a veritable bower of beauty by the use of trailing vines and masses of beautiful autumn flowers. The guests were soon ushered into the dining room which had also been beautifully decorated with vines and bowls of vari-colored chrysanthemums. Here the guests were served a beautiful chili supper after which they again repaired to the parlors where a program of music, reading and speeches was rendered. The evening was characterized by informality and good cheer.

Mrs. J. A. Henry, acting as master of ceremonies, presented Messdames Lawrence Martin and Minnie Gordon in humorous readings; Mr. E. P. Young and Miss Evelyn Murphy in a beautiful duet, accompanied by Mrs. Dick White. Mr. Young acting as song leader, led the guests in the singing of popular songs, which were entered into with zest and enthusiasm. Mrs. Ralph Rounton acted as accompanist.

Mr. Edward McFaddin, in his characteristic happy vein, introduced the "New" pastor who responded in an equally happy vein.

An hour was spent in fun and frolic after which all formed in line singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" as they bade good night to Mr. and Mrs. Harrison, renewing their pledges of loyalty and co-operation.

Country Bankers Defeat City Men

Roosevelt Critic Wins American Bankers Association Election

NEW ORLEANS, La.—(AP)—In a victory for opponents of the Roosevelt administration and for "country bankers" as agents

W. Adams of Salt Lake City, Utah, was assured Wednesday of election Thursday as second vice president of the American Bankers association. He will succeed to the presidency in 1937.

Following a stormy session Wednesday, Rudolph S. Hecht of New Orleans, retiring president, announced the withdrawal of E. B. Bennett of Ogden, Utah, who had been the choice of the association's nominating committee.

Adams' supporters refused to allow his name to go before the nominating committee, which they charged was "packed" for Bennett. Adams was nominated from the floor of the convention.

Bennett's withdrawal was announced unexpectedly after the delegates had recessed to take a secret ballot. The voting booths suddenly were closed and then the withdrawal was announced.

Supporters declared that Adams is the "foremost exponent of independent banking" as opposed to a unified banking system.

At the opening session of the convention Monday, Adams hotly denounced President Roosevelt's banking policies and urged the bankers to declare an "embargo" on government bonds "to halt reckless government spending."

The red racer, fastest of all American snakes, can go only 3.6 miles an hour.

Understanding Not So Great as Faith

Rev. Bert Webb Preached Wednesday From Text of Hebrews 9:19

The scriptural basis for the Rev. Bert Webb's message Wednesday night at the Hope Gospel Tabernacle, was Hebrews 9:19-22, particularly the 22nd verse, "And almost all things are by the law judged with blood; and without shedding of blood is no remission."

The Rev. Mr. Webb said: "I can not explain why God should require that blood be shed for the forgiveness of sin. There are many attempts throughout the Bible alluding to it. Statements of fact are made without definite explanation, but if you and I are going to make heaven we are going to have to recognize God's plan. Your sins, grievous and terrible as they may have been, may be covered by the blood. If you ever get to heaven, it is not going to be because you adhered to a creed or have been faithful to a church organization but because you have repented and God has forgiven your sins."

"All through the Old Testament there is a definite line of blood. From Christ down until now, we only have forgiveness for sin as we accept His atonement for us."

"If we could for $10,000 purchase a surety for heaven today, how many would avail themselves? But when He says to repent of your sins and accept the shed blood of Jesus many will not do it."

"Because we can not understand why we can be forgiven through the shed blood of Christ we should not reject God's plan. God required many things during Bible times that seemed unreasonable. We can not explain why the marching around the wall of Jericho had anything to do with their falling down. It is not the magnitude of our sin, nor your small sin, but the fact that you have not accepted the Lord Jesus Christ, that is going to condemn you. 'The blood of Jesus Christ cleanses from all sin.'"

Insurance Failure Blocks PWA Bids

Five Contractors Refuse to Bid Because of Clark County Suits

ARKADELPHIA, Ark.—(AP)—Announcing they were unable to obtain liability insurance in Clark county, five contractors refused Wednesday to submit bids on a new Arkadelphia city hall.

Bids were asked by the Public Works Administration, which is financing the project. The contractors met with the city council, Mayor R. R. Huie and Frank Erhart, Little Rock architect, discussed the situation and asked time to interview insurance agents.

Several hours later, the meeting reconvened and the contractors announced that the companies refused to write liability insurance.

City officials announced they would draft a resolution asking PWA headquarters at Washington to reconsider the matter and readvertise for bids.

It was announced at the meeting that the PWA was advised of the Clark county insurance situation. Insurance companies several weeks ago announced withdrawal from the liability field because of large sums awarded in damage suits tried here. A general election will be held here Tuesday on a proposed bond issue to finance the city's share of cost in the city hall. The voters will be given opportunity also to designate a site. Some opposition to the proposal has been expressed.

Rival in Love May Explain Shooting

Second Woman Sought in Murder Committed by Jealous Secretary

NEW YORK—A new motive for the shooting of Dr. Fritz Gebhardt by Miss Vana Stretz, New York university graduate, Tuesday night, was suggested by another New York "blonde" with whom the German scientist and foreign trader had been on intimate terms.

It was intimated that a quarrel took place in Dr. Gebhardt's 21st floor apartment before Miss Stretz shot him four times and fled. It is believed that the quarrel was caused by the woman's jealousy over his attentions to the other girl and his supposed failure to arrange a divorce while he was in Germany.

Dr. Gebhardt returned Friday from a two months' visit in Germany, during which he saw his estranged wife, then, and his two daughters, 15 and 17.

As police checked translations of letters from Gebhardt found in Miss Stretz's room, they discovered that he ardently wooed the girl. In nearly all the signed in romantic vein over his inability to transmute his emotions from German into English. Miss Stretz understood German imperfectly.

Dr. Gebhardt, for years a student teacher in German schools, was a frequent of night clubs, the police also discovered. Liberal, he sought the night spots with Miss Stretz, and, as she came to believe, with the other girl as well.

However, police did not discard the theory that Miss Stretz shot also out of a sense of frustration at Gebhardt's failure to arrange a divorce.

It appears from the letters that Gebhardt left for Germany last August with instructions from the girl to try to persuade Frau Then Gebhardt, his "non-Aryan" wife, to divorce him, so he might marry the American girl. A large number of letters and cablegrams passed between the economist and Miss Stretz during his absence.

If Dr. Gebhardt, on his return, announced that, instead of arranging a divorce, he had effected a reconciliation and proposed bringing his wife and family here to live, police believed that alone might account for Miss Stretz's act.

Philippines Turned

gion Washington won on the battlefield.

Ever since American occupation of the islands, Quezon has been the ever-burning torch of independence blazing there, easily the outstanding native politician and statesman developed in that period.

Men of the World

Quezon, though born at Balera, Luzon, August 19, 1878, is no insular ruler of faraway jungles. He is distinctly a man of the world, with wide experience and acquaintance in Asia and Europe, whence he only recently returned.

He is modern in every sense, and combines every trick in the bag of the expert American politician with the philosophical traits that go with his Spanish-Philippine parentage.

He is daring, quick-thinking and persistent, and loves a political fight.

Progress in Philippines

- 1521—Islands discovered by Magellan.
- 1545—Spanish colonial government established.
- 1596—Widespread revolt against Spanish rule.
- 1898—U. S. helps break Spanish domination; promises eventual freedom; pays Spain $20,000,000.
- 1901—U. S. troops break revolt against occupation; Aguinaldo's "republic" collapses.
- 1907—First Philippine assembly elected under U. S. auspices.
- 1916—Comprehensive system of self-government set up under Jones Organic Act.
- 1934—Commonwealth status provided by McDuffie-Tydings Act; independence in 10 years promised.
- 1935—Manuel Quezon chosen first president, under new constitution, of Philippine Commonwealth.
- 1945—?

so much that some of his countrymen call him "the Irishman of the Philippines."

Law and politics attracted him naturally. Having seen at first hand the futility of trying to win independence by force, Quezon set grudgingly on the long road to independence by purely political means.

He studied law. From 1909 to 1917 he was resident commissioner for the islands in Congress—which means a sort of legally recognized lobbyist for Philippine interests.

His continued efforts bore fruit in the Jones Act of 1916, establishing the first steps in native government.

Named Senate Head

Under this act he was elected president of the Philippine Senate, and held that post until very recently, when he retired to go to Europe for health treatments and to run on his return for the highest honor under the new government, which is launched November 15.

Quezon, now 57 years old, is a restless, energetic man, small and slight in stature like most of his own people. He likes to wear a red beret, play poker and smoke cigarettes.

His wife, an artist and linguist, was educated in the United States, for which Quezon has a limitless loyalty and friendship.

He has no illusions about the grant of commonwealth government which is to culminate in complete independence in 10 years. He is too good a politician not to know quite well that it came as much through pressure of American farm groups who want a tariff on Philippine sugar and coconut oil (now duty free) as through sheer idealism.

But he is a good enough politician to say that "No nation in history has ever done so magnanimous and so unselfish an act" as the United States in granting the islands their promised independence.

Has Faith in Islands

Quezon is quite confident of three things: first, that the islands are ready for independence at any time; second, that they can maintain it, economically and politically; and, third, that tariff difficulties with the United States can be cleared up satisfactorily to both parties.

It is in this confident spirit that Quezon faces heavy problems that will confront the new nation. Philippine prosperity depends greatly on exports, especially of sugar.

Most of this is sent to the United States, duty-free. Should complete independence come, a U. S. tariff wall might be raised against it which would ruin the industry and island prosperity.

And China is a constant warning of what may happen to helpless independent countries in the Far East whose rich resources may be coveted by stronger, expanding powers.

Won Woodrow Wilson

Quezon's coal-black hair is streaked with gray today as he runs a nervous hand through it in a characteristic gesture. But his health is excellent, after treatment in European and American hospitals, and his white teeth flash in the same smile that charmed Woodrow Wilson with its combination of good will and Oriental inscrutability.

On his slight, always beautifully tailored shoulder falls the job of starting peacefully a new republic in a world which is widely questioning democratic government, and in a corner of that world, the Far East, where it is an innovation.

ABERDEEN.—(AP)—Decorators have joined the staff of Aberdeen university to help students learn more easily. Freshmen, in their efforts to master logic, will do their thinking in a classroom with green and blue walls.

Those grappling with Greek will study in yellow surroundings.

Thus far the idea is limited to two colleges of the university. It is found that bright walls make bright students every room will be done in gay shades.

relieve the Mediterranean situation.

Britain is not planning an individual reply to Premier Mussolini's protest against the League's invocation of sanctions, which was dispatched to nations separately. London thinks a joint answer by all powers should be sent through the League of Nations. Italy specifically asked for the intentions of each country.

It was also stated that a talk Tuesday between Sir Eric Drummond, British ambassador to Rome, and Premier Mussolini was inconclusive and that no progress had been made. They are considering Britain's fleet concentration in the Mediterranean and large Italian forces in Libya, bordering upon Egypt.

No Change in Policy

Informed sources said Duce was doomed to disappointment if he is hankering for time in the hope of a more conciliatory attitude after the general election. They said there positively will be no weakening or change of policy.

British newspapers reported the first Italian reprisal against this country for sanctions. A London firm of reformers manufacturers was notified by its suppliers in Italy that its credit facilities have been withdrawn.

Contracts for three cruisers, three submarines and 11 auxiliary vessels were placed Wednesday. The construction is a part of the scheduled 1935 hulling program.

Private Personnel

PARIS, France.—(AP)—Official circles said Wednesday night they understood Premier Mussolini would postpone economic reprisals against France and also would halt Italian press attacks upon this country. Financial circles had feared a serious blow to France if Italy adopted reprisals because of Paris' support of League of Nations sanctions.

The Italian ambassador, Vittorio Cerutti, informed Premier Pierre Laval that Duce had decided on this action while awaiting a French reply to his protest against sanctions.

Laval reportedly told Cerutti his declarations at Geneva in support of the League action—while seeking a friendly solution of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict—answered Mussolini's protest. The French note of reply was expected to be delayed until Great Britain's answer was sent.

Right here in Hope, Ark., a city with a surplus in the treasury, are people living on nothing, almost starving, with barely enough clothes and not enough to eat. They can't even pay house rent, and can't move because there are only about one or two vacant houses to rent at any time. Ask Floyd Porterfield if this isn't so.

And then to make the heads of these families or their support pay their blood money, to the City of Hope is a crime; and I say everyone should ask the councilmen to repeal that unjust street tax law.

Woman Flies the Southern Atlantic

Jean Batten, New Zealand Flier, Crosses From Africa to Brazil

PERIAMBUCO, Brazil.—(AP)—New Zealand's young and adventurous girl flier, Jean Batten, stepped smiling from her airplane at Natal Wednesday—first of her sex to fly alone across the South Atlantic.

She completed a 1,881-mile flight from Dakar, Senegal, at 4:45 p. m. local time, a total of 15 hours and 15 minutes for the transatlantic journey.

Miss Batten, who abandoned music lessons in London to take up flying in a plane once owned by the Prince of Wales, brought her machine, a Haviland-Gypsy, down at Natal in a perfect three-point landing.

"I'll fly on to Rio de Janeiro," she said.

From Lympne, England, her elapsed time was 61 hours and seven minutes to the moment her plane was visible over Natal.

Clothing Appeal

The Star after the canvass of Hope, was completed Thursday morning.

"We are so happy over it. The response was just fine. I never saw such a fine spirit. We not everything from overalls to silk dresses," the elated representative of the P-T-A continued.

Approximately 50 representatives of the P-T-A. launched their canvass at 9 a. m. and an hour later the clothing was assembled and taken to the high school building.

The P-T-A. will make necessary alterations, and then a plan of distribution will be worked out. The clothing will be given to all needy school children.

Honest Election Louisiana Pledge

Governor Allen Declares Both Sides May Watch Polling Places

BATON ROUGE, La.—(AP)—Honest elections in Louisiana came to the front Wednesday as an issue with a demand from one side for a fair count of ballots and a promise from the other side that votes would be fairly counted.

Gov. O. K. Allen, head of the political machine left by the late Senator Huey P. Long, said that "both sides" would have representation in commissioning and watchers at the polls in the January 21 Democratic primary.

Norman Bauer, campaign manager for the anti-administration "home rule" ticket, invited the governor to hold a conference with a representative of the "home rule" ticket and agree on "equal representation" at the polls for an honest election count.

Allen, a candidate for the unfinished term of Long in the United States Senate, deferred comment on Bauer's proposal.

An act of one of Long's special legislative sessions gives Governor Allen control of vote counting. The statute empowers the parish boards of supervisors of election to name poll commissioners. Two of the three members of the boards of gubernatorial appointees. Prior to the act's passage commissioners were named by candidates and drawn from a hat.

yers who had the late Arthur (Butch) Schultz) Flegenheimer, New York racketeer, for a client.

The bar association said its committee on professional ethics and grievances, meeting in Columbus, Ohio, November 13, would consider a complaint by Federal Judge William Clark of New Jersey against the lawyers.

They were listed as George S. Sitzer of Newark, former governor of New Jersey; former state Senator John E. Tooman of Perth Amboy; and Harry Weindesager of Newark.

The judge asked the association "for an adjudication as to the propriety of the professional conduct shown" by the Schultz lawyers in a case before him October 22 in which the government sought the gangster's removal to New York on income tax evasion charges.

stional man want to know more about

He is slightly above medium height, stocky and broad of shoulder. He has a square jaw, a firm mouth that breaks into an easy smile, and blue-gray eyes. His forehead is furrowed and his hair iron-gray.

He won the Kansas gubernatorial race in 1932 against Harry Woodring, now assistant secretary of war, while Roosevelt was carrying the state against Hoover. He demonstrated that this victory was not a fluke or political freak by repeating last year.

Practiced Economy
When he campaigned, he promised Kansas that he would apply common sense methods of government if elected. He promised to reduce the cost of government, wipe out all unnecessary bureaus, and stop wastage of public funds.

The per capita cost of government in Kansas in 1929 was $71. Today it is $51. General property taxes have been decreased 32 per cent. State and local revenues have been reduced from $124,000,000 to $97,000,000.

"Oh, yes," Landon admitted, "there was quite a howl from party workers. I told them that if the way to prosperity was to give everyone a job in the government, then my job would be easy."

During the first 10 weeks of his first administration, Landon wielded the pruning knife with facility. Bureaus were eliminated or consolidated and waste was wiped out.

Job holders who drew fat salaries for sitting in swivel chairs with their feet on desks were rudely booted out of office.

Minds Own Business
Such an unorthodox method naturally horrified the professional politician, but if it hurt Landon politically it did not show in his second campaign. His first victory against Woodring was by a scant 6000 votes, while his second triumph last year was by 63,000 votes. He lost only 15 of 105 counties.

"I have only one predominant thought now," Landon says, "and that is to mind my own business. After all a governor does have to work. Kansas has balanced its budget, lowered taxes, and met every relief need. In addition, we experienced three major disasters: drought, dust storms, and floods."

"My political philosophy decrees that I shall never worry about my political future and I am sticking by that creed now."

This 47-year-old state executive and World War veteran declines to take any determined stand against the administration or to directly attack President Roosevelt, although he is not averse to a few jabs at the administration's program.

After graduation from the Kansas University School of Law in 1909, Landon entered the banking business in Independence, his home town. There he became an independent oil producer and the business principles he has learned in banking and oil have been applied to government.

Eyes Foreign Trade Need
He indorses part of the AAA, but believes the major error is the inattention given to a restoration of foreign markets through which the farmer benefited.

"Industry and agriculture must be balanced and foreign trade revived before there can be any farm relief," he contends.

"I cannot agree that any plan which tries to peg agricultural prices or create some kind of pegged prices for farm products is feasible or advisable, for the simple reason that man cannot control the forces of nature. Until man can control the weather, it is folly to try to control the weather. It is folly to try to control farm prices," says the governor.

Waste in the AAA and other administration bureaus and from experimentation and high-salaried field representatives," Landon chooses to term "political and administrative delinquencies."

And where is the Forgotten Man today?

"The Forgotten Man is still partly forgotten," Landon asserts. "Relief stops being relief when it warps the initiative and industry of our people. We didn't do any experimenting in Kansas," Landon states. "We measured our expenses by the ability of the taxpayer to pay now and not in the future. No nation or business can spend more than is earned and expect to avoid bankruptcy."

Born In East
Alfred M. Landon was born in West Middlesex, Pa., and came to Kansas

Scholastic Record for Martha Cantley

Miss Martha Cantley, daughter of Mrs. W. M. Cantley, who is a senior at Arkansas college, Batesville, has made an outstanding scholastic record for the first quarter of the year's work, according to a college press release. Miss Cantley has an excellent record for the time she has been in Arkansas college. She is one of the leaders on the campus and is chairman of the Women's Vigilance Committee.

With his parents in 1904, settling near Independence. This is his first political office, but he is not without political experience.

He campaigned for Governor Stibbs during the Bull Moose campaign and was Gov. Henry J. Allen's secretary in 1922. In 1928 he directed the campaign of Gov. Clyde Reed.

During his first term as governor he instituted a cleanup of a Kansas banking scandal which sent men to prison who had supported the Republican party in state politics.

He has consistently refused to play politics with relief projects and earned the adulation of Kansas farmers by his unceasing labors during the drought, dust storms and floods.

While independently wealthy, he worked hard for every dollar earned. In both campaigns his opponents raised the cry he was a member of the idle rich and several times a millionaire.

"I only wish I had a sixth of what they estimate," he replied.

Since the national spotlight has been turned on Landon, he has refused scores of invitations to public gatherings where he could not help but enhance his prestige.

"I am too busy as governor to go scooting about the country making speeches," he insisted.

Devoted to Family
Next to his attractive wife, two daughters, and small son, his most prized possessions are a faded campaign hat, which is crumpled and shapeless; a pipe that emits a variety of odors, and a set of elaborate fishing apparatus.

He is an ardent baseball and football fan. He works in his shirt sleeves in summer, calls reports by the first names, and trusts them implicitly in "off the record" talks.

Unlike many public servants who laud their own accomplishments, Landon frankly admits that co-operation of Democratic legislators made it possible to place Kansas in the unusual position she is in today.

He predicts the Republican party will adopt a program between ultra-conservatism and ultra-radicalism and that the chances for victory next year are good.

"Roosevelt can't be beaten!" he repeats. "Wait and see."

Sets Drift From F. R.
"From all over Kansas I hear the farmers—and I heard it in many sections of the middlewest, too—are gradually veering away from the national administration and will not support Roosevelt for re-election."

"The business man and the industrialist are beginning to see that the uncertainty of governmental experiments has retarded recovery."

Landon is a liberal Republican and admits there is some good in parts of the New Deal. Nevertheless, he is a staunch believer in the future of his party.

"We should not forget," he pointed out, "that in similar economic situations in 1873, 1884, and 1893, the Republican party took on new life and vigor and met every test of those dangerously trying periods."

"Adversity and circumstances beyond the party's control might temporarily halt its progress, but it never failed to come back."

Wallace Appeals to the Processors

Have Common Interest With Farmers in Adjusting Crop Production

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Food processors have a common interest with the farmers in the adjustment of farm production to market needs, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace told the Associated Grocery Manufacturers of America Thursday.

"American agriculture, with or without federal guidance, must adjust itself to a radically changed market situation, the outstanding feature of which is a lessened opportunity to export," he declared.

WPA Women Assigned
LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Mrs. Blanche Ralston, of New Orleans, Southern regional director of the WPA women's division, said Thursday that Arkansas is the first of the 12 Southern states to assign all women WPA workers to projects allotted them.

More than 5,000 Arkansas women are now employed on WPA jobs, she said.

Fayetteville Asks Police Protection

Is Threatened by Outlaw Band, Says Appeal to Attorney General

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Attorney General Carl E. Bailey announced Thursday he had received a wire from Fayetteville signed by R. W. E. Curtis, deputy constable, requesting help to deal with "a dangerous gang of outlaws."

"We need help from your office," said the message Bailey received. "Kindly send good attorneys. We have a dangerous gang of outlaws here to deal with—bootleggers, thieves, property destroyers, and those who are performing cruelty upon animals. Life and property are in danger."

One child of every six in the United States is a member of a family on relief in 1934.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief Of Pain

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are one of Nature's chief ways of taking the acids and wastes out of the blood. If they don't pass 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing.

If you have trouble with frequent bladder passages with scanty amount which often smart and burn, the 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes and dizziness.

Don't wait for serious trouble. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS, which have been used successfully for over 40 years by millions of people. They give happy relief and will help flush out the 15 miles of kidney tubes. Get DOAN'S PILLS.
